As the primary grape used to make Prosecco, Glera is known for its crisp and refreshing flavor, making it the perfect choice to create a light and fruity sparkling wine with delicate bubbles. Prosecco is more versatile to pair with foods. Try it with seafood, salads, light pasta dishes and brunch!

Regioni del Vino Italy produces more wine by volume than any other country in the world. The country's 20 wine regions grow over 370 unique varieties of grapes. Regions matter, because when you are drinking wine, you are drinking the Earth itself. Every year, weather, temperature and soil chemistry vary and produce what are sometimes dramatically different wines from precisely the same place. Because these wine regions have been cultivating their fields for centuries, and sometimes millennia, they each bring distinct characteristics to the barrel, and later, the bottle.

Lemon Drop Martini

Ingredients:

- 2 oz Pallini Limoncello
- 1 oz Vodka
- 1/2 oz fresh squeezed lemon juice
- 1/4 cup sugar for rim

Directions:

Pour a thin layer of sugar onto a small plate (just bigger than the rim of your martini glass.) Prepare martini glass by lightly rubbing the rim with the freshly wet part of a cut lemon to dampen it. Then, dip the moistened rim of the glass into sugar, gently shake off any excess. Combine all ingredients except the sugar in a cocktail shaker and shake vigorously. Strain into the prepared martini glass. Garnish with a lemon twist and serve immediately.

Nastro Azzurro Pale Lager is made with a corn exclusive to Peroni—Nostrano dell'Isola maize—which imbues the beer with its color, clarity and characteristic citrus, spice, and bitter balance. The beer is brewed with Saaz-Saaz and Hallertau Magnum hops, responsible for Nastro Azzurro's ephemeral touch on the palate. Taken together, with two-row spring barley in the mix, you get a premium beer notable for its especially crisp finish.
